THE DAWSON FIRE...

A LESSON TO BE LEARNED.

Before concluding any arrangement for shipping your freight from Bennett to Dawson, please write or give us a call. By using our barges you can carry your freight for down to Dawson in the season of 1898 without loss or accident. Cattle shipped in this way arrive without loss of weight and in the best possible condition for making good beef. On your arrival at Dawson you have your own warehouse and not before. This may save you hundreds of dollars for teaming, storage, etc., while at the same time you run no risk from fire. Insurance on route on cargo may be effected at our office if you so desire. If you wish to make rapid time we will arrange a tow for you past the lake.

Verify these facts before shipping your freight and it will save you money. Lumber, boats and merchandise of all kinds constantly on hand at our mills at Bennett Lake.

Foolish Talk to Mr.

Sir Richard Makes Lame Apology
for His Peculiar Conversion.

London Importer to Pack Pork
in Canada for English Trade.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—In accepting for himself and the Governor-General an invitation to attend the Chicago corner stone laying during the course of the autumn, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, it is generally conceded, has adopted the only course open to him, after the anti-American sentiments attributed to him by Mr. Fitzpatrick, of Washington, who first approached him on the matter. The government has been informed that Mauritius and British Borneo have adopted the two-cent Imperial letter rate.

Sir Richard's Apology.

Sir Richard Cartwright addressed a meeting in Toronto to-night. Mr. Bertram, the only other speaker announced, failed to put in an appearance. Those who expected a rousing speech were sadly disappointed. Cartwright being mainly apologetic. There were frequent interruptions, with shouts of "What about free trade?" and "How about the sixty million expenditure?" His reply was: "Better a large population and large expenditure, than a small population and small expenditure." The meeting was over at 10 o'clock.

Parcels for Russia.

The post office department has made a new parcel post arrangement with Russia. Hereafter parcels for Russia will be sent "via Hamburg," the rate being 58 cents per pound, and 11 pounds being the limit of weight.

Mission to Europe.

Mr. Smart, deputy minister of the interior, left for Europe yesterday, ostensibly to inspect European immigration agencies.

Pork Packing Enterprise.

With the object of enlarging the market in England for Canadian hams and bacon, a well-known London importer, Mr. Courtenay, of J. & M. Courtenay, is on a visit to this country. He will start a pork packing establishment especially for the English trade.

Dreyfus Speaks Up.

Accused Deals at Length With the Fiction of His Confession.

Shown That No Attempt Was Made to Verify Capt.
Reneault's Tale.

President of Former Court Martial Admits Conviction
in Advance.

By Associated Press.

Rennes, Aug. 24.—When the court-martial opened at the Lycée here at 6:40 a. m. to-day, Col. Jouhaux ordered that the evidence given by M. Perot, a friend of the late Col. Sandherr, chief of the intelligence department, be read by the clerk of the court. It was to the effect that Col. Sandherr said that the Dreyfus family offered 150,000 francs on condition that he would clear Dreyfus.

Maitre Demange, for the defence, disposed of this allegation by reading the actual note on the subject written by Sandherr, thereby proving the Colonel's remarks had been distorted, Dreyfus's brother only having said: "We are convinced of the innocence of our brother, and will spend our entire fortune to discover the truth."

The testimony of the first witness of the day, that of Linolle, a former official of the government, was also in favor of Dreyfus, as it was in direct contradiction to what M. Dubreuil deposed yesterday regarding the alleged intimacy of Dreyfus and a German attaché at the house of M. Bodson, a mutual friend.

The president of the court then called Col. Maurel, who was president of the Dreyfus court-martial in 1894. The Colonel was attired in a black frock coat and wore the ribbon of the Legion of Honor in his button-hole. He appeared ill at ease as M. Labori lashed him with pointed questions, and hesitated or answered in a short, choppy manner.

Counsel drew from the Colonel a confession that the secret dossier was communicated to the judges of the court-martial in 1894 by Col. Du Paty de Clam. This avowal produced a sensation in court.

M. Labori put a series of searching questions to Gen. Mercier, with reference to the communication of the secret dossier for the court-martial and his attitude in 1894, and an interesting scene ensued. The General refused to reply to all the questions, and there were sharp passages at arms between the counsel and Col. Jouhaux, who upheld Gen. Mercier, while the dialogue between the General and M. Labori became acrimonious. Counsel became very heated and showed it in voice and gesture. Gen. Mercier, however, troubled as his mind might be, seldom departed from the calm demeanor characteristic of him.

The lawyer made a strong point on the part of Esterhazy played. Mercier said he did not know Esterhazy, and had only seen him once, at the Zola trial. "That is very interesting," exclaimed Labori, "but surely Gen. Mercier was present at the Esterhazy trial."

The General replied he was not there, and knew nothing about the evidence in the Esterhazy prosecution. "What," cried Labori, "Gen. Mercier, who was the chief accuser of Dreyfus, did not follow the proceedings in the Esterhazy trial?"

A loud murmur of surprise and indignation came from the audience, but Col. Jouhaux immediately suppressed it. Counsel then brought Mercier to his assertion that 35,000,000 francs were spent by the defenders of Dreyfus, and asked the General to say how he knew this, who spent it, and other awkward questions, which the General was unable to answer.

The question as to how the bordereau arrived at the offices of the general staff, its date, etc., was then introduced, which led to a strange scene for a court of law.

Gen. Roget, mounting the platform to give explanation, was followed by Gen. De Boisdeffre, M. Gribelin, Major Lauth and other military witnesses, all holding up their hands to signify that they desired to speak, who at the same time Labori was firing questions. The result was a perfect babel, until the president of the court could stand it no longer, and when the government commissary, Major Carriere, also interposed a few remarks, Col. Jouhaux turned to him and asked him to be quiet, remarking that the judges could not hear half a dozen persons at the same time.

Manila, Aug. 24.—Gen. Bates has returned from Zulu, having successfully accomplished his mission there. After five weeks' negotiations with much tact an agreement was signed, which in substance was as follows:

The United States shall occupy and control such parts of the archipelago as public interest demands; the introduction of firearms shall be prohibited; piracy shall be suppressed; the American courts shall have jurisdiction except between the Moros; the Americans shall protect the Moros against foreign imposition, and the Sultan's subsidy from Spain shall be continued. The sultan and several chiefs signed the agreement.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—The Genesee crossed the first buoy in to-day's race for the Canada cup at 1:05 about 3 minutes ahead of the Beaver. The wind died down to a few catpaws. At 2:15 the Genesee was still leading by a considerable distance, and she finally won at 3:31 by several minutes.

Prompt Action Called For.

Further Delay in South Africa
Will Be Serious for British Prestige.

Dutch in All Colonies Arming
for the Fray—Movement of Troops.

London, Aug. 25.—The Capetown correspondent of the Daily Mail says:

Despite the virtual blockade of war material in Delagoa bay, the Cape government is sending enormous consignments of munitions of war to Bloemfontein. During the present month over 2,000,000 cartridges have been sent,
and 500 rifles were despatched last night
from Port Elizabeth to Bloemfontein.
In addition to this the Cape ministry, while absolutely declining to arm the volunteers of the colony, continues to afford other facilities to the Orange Free State to arm its burghers just across the water, freely granting the use of the colonial railways for the distribution of cartridges from the Bloemfontein arsenals to the border towns. The patience of the people is becoming exhausted, and unless the Imperial government acts quickly and decisively, the gravest danger may ensue to British prestige.

Capetown, Aug. 24.—The Delagoa bay incident, coupled with the recent transit of a large amount of ammunition, has directed the attention of British officials to the immense accumulation of munitions of war entering the South African Republic, especially as the Transvaal Uitlanders are being debarred from carrying arms. The supply of weapons, as shown in Lorenzo Marquez (Delagoa bay) returns for three years, is greatly in excess of the burghers' requirements, and consequently there is a growing feeling among the British community in South Africa that no settlement of the existing crisis will ensure lasting peace unless it includes a provision for the reduction of armaments.

Johannesburg, Aug. 24.—At a meeting of 200 Germans a committee was appointed to express to the government the willingness of Germans to volunteer for service in case of war, but requested that they be enlisted in a separate corps, on account of the hardships endured by Germans in the Magdo campaign.

Southampton, England, Aug. 24.—The British steamer Arundel Castle sailed from this port today with thirty officers and 730 men of various regiments, bound for Capetown.

Gibraltar, Aug. 24.—The Manchester regiment, numbering 1,000 men, has sailed for Capetown.

Durban, Natal, Aug. 24.—Men belonging to the British first-class reserve residing here have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to rejoin their regiments.

London, Aug. 24.—The Marquis of Salisbury spent the afternoon and evening with Queen Victoria. It is believed that the grave situation of affairs in Transvaal is partly responsible for the Emperor's visit to Her Majesty.

FAMINE AND SMALLPOX.

No Distress Britishers in East Africa
That Relief Is Called For.

Mombassa, East Coast of Africa, Aug.
24.—The ravages caused here by famine and smallpox have become so appalling that it has been decided to appeal to the Lord Mayor of London to open a Mansion House fund for the relief of the stricken British subjects in East Africa.

TRAIN FALLS INTO RIVER.

Many Passengers Lose Their Lives by This Mishap in Chile.

Santiago de Chile, Aug. 24.—A great accident occurred here today. An entire passenger train fell into the river Mapocho, which runs through the city,
and many lives were lost.

BLOWN TO ATOMS.

Two Lives Sacrificed in the Ruin of Pennsylvania Powder House.

Pottsville, Pa., Aug. 24.—The dry house of the Samuel Debbie powder mill near Shepton was completely wrecked by an explosion today, and William T. Betsonberg, one of the proprietors, and Harry Jones, a powder maker, were literally
blown to atoms.

SIGNATOR QUAY'S OUTING.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 24.—Senator Quay started this evening with a small party of friends on a trip to the head of the Restigouche, in Canada, where he will spend three weeks hunting moose and fishing for salmon and trout.

RUFFIAN PIRATES.

Tangiers, Aug. 24.—The Sultan of Morocco has notified the powers that he is destroying the native boats on the Riff coast and is establishing a gunboat service in order to protect foreign shipping from piracy.

VANCOUVER AND VICINITY.

Ten Days Dead Before Discovery—
Revelstoke Swift's Sentence—
Telegraph Extension.

Vancouver, Aug. 24.—A woman named Annie Nelson, alias Annie Triethick, was today found dead in her room,
and evidence points to the fact that about 10 days ago she suicided with carbolic acid. She came here from Credit, in Exeter county, Ontario, in 1884, or thereabouts. She was the daughter of a farmer. Failing to secure employment here, she went astray, and has lived by herself in apartments in the business portion of the city.

D. G. Cathcart, the Revelstoke government clerk, has been sentenced to the Westminster jail for 15 months on five charges of obtaining goods by false pretences. The original charges were uttering forgeries, but these were withdrawn.
He got 3 months on each charge. He failed to secure counsel, and pleaded guilty to the charges. Among the bills incurred by Cathcart was $30 for back hire, and another large sum for jewelry.

Telegraph communication has been established with Cascade, B. C., by the Canadian Pacific Railway Telegraphs, that point having been reached by the Boundary Creek extension on August 21. Grand Forks, it is expected, will be reached about a week later, and Greenwood somewhere about September 15.
A great reduction in rates will be effected by the completion of this line, the rate from Vancouver to Cascade being made 60 cents, in lieu of $1.15.

In the Westminster Police court on Tuesday the proprietor of the Cleveland hotel was a second time convicted of supplying liquor to Indians, and was fined $150, or in default 6 months' imprisonment. A half-breed named Jim Vock paid $50 fine for supplying whiskey to a full-blooded "brave."
The Chinese reformer, Hon. Kang Yu Wei, has, with his suite, taken up his abode at the Columbian College, Westminster. The company consists of his excellency, his Chinese secretary, his interpreter and one of the Northwest mounted police officers, Rev. Principal Sippell, B. A., B. D., who has been on a visiting tour throughout Ontario and the States, will return to take charge of the Columbian College about the 10th of September.

Fishing on the Fraser was almost a failure on Tuesday. In the aggregate, a few hundred were caught. Fishermen are having a great deal of trouble with snags, and in one case a net was drawn under a boom of logs, near the Automatic Can factory. It is understood that the price of fish has been advanced to 25 cents.

On Saturday next, August 26, the vote of the electors of Vancouver will be taken on the by-law to raise by way of debentures, a loan of $150,000 to be applied for the sewage of certain portions of the city and for the construction of septic or settling tanks to treat the sewage.

SOUTH AUSTRALIAN FINANCES.

Adelaide, South Australia, Aug. 24.—
The treasurer, Hon. F. W. Holder, in presenting the budget for South Australia today, said harvest prospects were fair for this time of the year, and the outlook, especially with the improved agricultural prospects, was very hopeful.

AQUATICS AT ASTORIA.

Vancouver Fours Declined to Take
Risk of Swamping—The Double's Accident.

An Astoria despatch, dated August 22,
to the Portland Oregonian, says:
"The double scull race, between Hart
and Scott, of the Portland Rowing Club, and Alexander and Thompson, of
the Vancouver crew, was spoiled by an
unfortunate accident to the Vancouver
boat. The race promised to be an exciting one, but at the turn Alexander
broke his oar-lock, and Vancouver was out of it. Portland kept right on, and finished strong, a half-mile ahead of her unfortunate competitors. Her time was 13:27."

"The afternoon Dr. Rhel was on hand with his wonderful life-saving kites
and necessary apparatus, but owing to
the unfavorable conditions he put off exhibiting it until tomorrow. An effort
was then made to pull off the four-oared
race. The Vancouver, Portland and Alameda
crews got out their shells and rowed up
the river. Then the weather became squally and the water very choppy. The Vancouver crew decided not to risk losing or breaking their shell, and turned
back, but the other two decided to row
it out. The course was the three-quarter-
mile straightaway, finishing at the grand stand. The crews got away fairly well,
and Portland at once sprung into the
lead. Before they had covered a quarter
of a mile the Alameda crew was seen
to be in distress, and a few minutes later

Gen. Gonz, assistant chief of the head-pleased.

Then Labori proceeded to deal with the Panizzardi despatch and bring out the contradictory translations of it and the falseness of the final version. After hearing Gen. Mercier and Gen. Chanoiné on the subject, Col. Jonauste declared the court would rule the despatch out of the evidence.

The examination of Gen. Mercier having been concluded, Col. Jonauste asked Dreyfus if he had anything to say, and the prisoner, in a calm voice, replied to Mercier's statement that he (Dreyfus)

reau while staying at Bourges.

The artillery trials were being held the artillery entered into an explanation as to how he spent his time, showing that he could not inform himself about the trials of the new gun brake.

Gen. Ribourg recounted what Capt.
Lebrun Renault said about Dreyfus, and he pointed out that the Captain showed him by the hand when he returned to the prison, which was at variance with what Gen. Ribourg recounted. "Moreover," continued Dreyfus, "when a frightful charge has been hanging over a man's head for five years, people ought not to talk of convictions, but should bring proofs, otherwise I cease to understand the matter." This indignant protest caused a deep sensation in court.

Continuing, Dreyfus proceeded totally to confound the story that he had made a confession to Capt. Lebrun Renault.

The remainder of the sitting was taken up with the deposition of minor witnesses, mostly M. Beaupreire's puppets, whose evidence, when it did not bore the audience, produced merriment.

Two interesting scenes, however, took place—first, when M. Labori asked Gen.
Rogot to give his opinion of Esterhazy's role and his visit to the German embassy
on October 23, 1897.

Rogot replied in a tone of studied disdain which he habitually adopts towards counsel for the defence: "I absolutely refuse to tell you." M. Labori warmly insisted, but the president of the court crushed him with the curt refusal even to allow Gen. Rogot to respond.

The second scene was between Labori
and Jonauste after the deposition of the royalist deputy, Dr. G. de la Motte, which consisted of a clap-trap tirade against witnesses intervening in the affair, and tittle-tattle outside the case, delivered in grandiloquent style, with a peroration worthy of an election harangue, ending with the preposterous words addressed to the judges: "If you think Dreyfus innocent, acquit him, but if you decide he is guilty, you must punish his condemnation." The deputy accompanied this instruction to the court with sweeping gestures, and turned to leave the stage amid roars of laughter from the audience, which drew a fierce stare-vain look from him, that again convulsed the court.

M. Labori, however, called the deputy back. He wanted to examine several of the points raised by the deputy.

"The double scull race, between Hart
and Scott, of the Portland Rowing
Club, and Alexander and Thompson, of
the Vancouver crew, was spoiled by an
unfortunate accident to the Vancouver
boat. The race promised to be an exciting one, but at the turn Alexander
broke his oar-lock, and Vancouver was
out of it. Portland kept right on, and
finished strong, a half-mile ahead of her unfortunate competitors. Her time was 13:27."

"The afternoon Dr. Rhel was on hand with his wonderful life-saving kites
and necessary apparatus, but owing to
the unfavorable conditions he put off ex-
hibiting it until tomorrow. An effort
was then made to pull off the four-oared
race. The Vancouver, Portland and Alameda
crews got out their shells and rowed up
the river. Then the weather became squally and the water very choppy. The Vancouver crew decided not to risk losing or breaking their shell, and turned
back, but the other two decided to row
it out. The course was the three-quarter-
mile straightaway, finishing at the grand
stand. The crews got away fairly well,
and Portland at once sprung into the
lead. Before they had covered a quarter
of a mile the Alameda crew was seen
to be in distress, and a few minutes later they sank. The Ida Hazel put out to the rescue, and the crew was taken on

at "this idle controversy resumed." (Cries of "Oh! oh!") The General asked that Major Maton, who assisted in deciphering the telegram, be called, and counsel protested against the application of the word "idle" to any questions he thought proper to ask.

General Chanoine said he communicated the document to General Roget, while enjoining absolute privacy. When asked if he accepted responsibility for the document, General Chanoine replied in the affirmative, adding, however, the admission that he had made a mistake.

Colonel Jouniste intimated that the court would take no notice of the document in question.

Dreyfus here gave a detailed story of how he employed his time at Bourges in October, 1889, and February, 1890. He said:

"I was promoted captain September 12, 1889, and remained at Bourges from October, 1889, to February, 1890, when the written examinations at the military college took place. I was then called to Paris, obtained two months' leave, and was married in April. I spent four months at Bourges. As I was preparing for examination, I had no time to go to cafes, or to think of anything outside of my duties."

This was in reply to General Mercier's assertion that he could have learned the secrets of the pneumatic brake there.

General Ribour, who was commander of the Republican guard in Paris in 1894, was the next witness. He described the scene with Captain Lebrun Renault when the witness learned of the latter's alleged confession to Captain Lebrun Renault the day after the prisoner's degradation. In conclusion, the General eulogized the services of Lebrun Renault, and said that before the incident of the confession there was nothing against him. He was an excellent officer and a good comrade, and incapable of inflicting any one.

After being asked the usual question, Dreyfus protested against General Ribour's evidence. "I am surprised," the prisoner said, "that Captain Lebrun Renault could have made the statements attributed to him. On the way from the prison La Sainte Catherine Lebrun Renault shook hands with me, a fact which is in contradiction with his statement. Besides, when such a terrible charge has been hanging over a man who has resisted it for five years, witnesses should not come here merely to speak their beliefs, but ought to bring positive proofs. Otherwise, I am completely nonplussed as to how I can reply."

Continuing, Dreyfus said: "Reference was also made to confessions. I will state the exact terms of the so-called confessions of mine. The day Capt. Lebrun Renault and I were in the room together I said to him: 'I am innocent. I will declare it and face the whole people. That is the cry of my conscience. You know that cry. I repeated it all through the torture of my degradation.' Afterwards I added, referring to the visit of Du Paty de Clam, 'The minister is aware that I am innocent.' What I meant to intimate was that I had apprised the minister in response to steps Du Paty de Clam had taken against me, that I was innocent. Du Paty de Clam visited me and asked for information. I replied to him: 'I am innocent, absolutely.' I replied verbally to Du Paty de Clam, and in writing to the minister, that I was perfectly innocent. That was what I meant by the words, 'The minister is well aware that I am innocent.' Then I reverted to the visit of Du Paty de Clam and said to Capt. Lebrun Renault: 'Du Paty de Clam asked me if I had not given documents of no importance in order to obtain others in exchange. I replied that not only was I absolutely innocent, but that I desired that the whole matter should be cleared up. Then I added I hoped that within two or three years my innocence would be established. I told Du Paty de Clam that I wanted full light on the matter, that an injury had been done, and that it was impossible for the government to fail to use its influence to discover the whole truth. 'The government,' I said, 'has meant either through the military attaches or through diplomatic channels to reach the truth.' I also said: 'It is awful that a soldier should be convicted of such a frightful crime. Consequently it seems to me, as I only ask for the truth and light, that the government should use all the means at its disposal to secure that light.' Du Paty de Clam replied: 'There are interests at stake higher than yours, and these channels cannot be employed.' He added, however, that the inquiries would be continued. It was on the strength of Du Paty de Clam's promise to try what means could be found to reach the truth of this awful crime that I said I hoped that in two or three years my innocence would be proved, for Du Paty de Clam told me that the investigation would be of the most delicate nature, and could not be undertaken immediately. I think I have expressed my whole mind. If you still have any doubt I ask you, my Colonel, to present it to me." The prisoner's remarks deeply impressed his hearers.

At the request of M. Demange, Gen. Mercier was recalled and asked to explain why, having sent Du Paty de Clam to Dreyfus to discover the amount of injury Dreyfus had done, he had not followed up his investigations.

Gen. Mercier—I did not feel called upon to do so.

Col. Jouniste—General, why, when you were apprised of the confession, did you not send some one to Dreyfus to try to get a substantiation and discover what he had not told Du Paty de Clam?

Gen. Mercier—Dreyfus had written me that he refused to discuss the confessions with Du Paty de Clam, and I took no further steps.

Col. Jouniste—But since the prisoner seemed to have been making avowals of his guilt, why did you not follow the matter up?

Gen. Mercier—I might perhaps have thought of it, but it did not occur to me. The prisoner protested that the inquiry ought to have been followed up, "because it would have served to destroy the fiction of a confession to which such importance is now attached." (Sensation.) Continuing, Dreyfus said: "Will you permit me, my Colonel, to make a small remark with reference to the confession of my confessions? I remained in the prison of La Sainte for two or three weeks, and saw M. Demange during that period, and also then and while I was at the Hotel de Reine I wrote the minister of war and others. I believe the letters I wrote are contained in the secret dossier. I believe I also wrote to the head of the state. How is it I was never asked about the legend of my confession that was in a position to destroy it immediately? I never heard a word of it, it was only four years later, in January, 1899, when interrogated by the commissioners sent by the court of cassation, that I heard of this fiction. What I did not understand is that while I was still

FOREIGNERS COMING.

French, German and Italian Warships Will Visit Esquimalt Shortly.

According to present indications there will be quite an international tea party at Esquimalt toward the close of September, with the representatives of three foreign powers as the guests of H. M. S. Warspite and her sisters of Admiral Beaumont's squadron. The visitors are to be French, German and Italian—the first-class cruiser Protet, flying the tricolor of the first European republic; the Geier of H. I. G. M.'s navy; and an Italian training ship whose name is not yet known, at present carrying 1000 men, and due to sail for Esquimalt from Japan on the 1st proximo. The resident German consul has been advised by his government that the Geier may be expected to arrive about September 23, for a stay of ten days.

MARINE NOTES.

Brief Mention of Happenings Along the Water Front Yesterday.

The steamer Rosalie sailed for Alaska points yesterday morning, carrying about 50 passengers and a full cargo. Among her passengers was Mr. A. R. Langley, who recently returned from Atlin and is now going to Lake Bennett to take a position with the Canadian Development Company as bookkeeper.

The last of the Victoria cargo was last night taken from the bark Drumblair by Stevedores Alex. McDermott, and this morning the vessel will be towed to Vancouver.

This evening the steamer Miowera, of the Canadian-Australian line, will sail for Honolulu, Brisbane and Sydney.

Mrs. J. N. S. Williams and children go to Honolulu on her to join Mr. Williams, who has secured a position there. Mrs. W. L. Green will accompany Mrs. Williams. E. S. Tippet goes to Sydney on the Miowera.

Steamer Selkirk arrived from Union yesterday with a load of fire clay for the pottery company.

Bark J. L. Wood will load props at Ganges Harbor for Santa Rosalia, not at Cowichan, as previously published.

Steamer Oscar leaves to-day for New Westminster.

Tug Lorne came off the marine ways yesterday, after having received an overhaul.

LAST EDMONTON TRAILERS.

Steamer Strathcona Has Gone to Wrangell For Rest of Victims.

The good old Cottage City appears to have fallen into the bad habits of the Queen with regard to shunning the daylight during her brief visits to Victoria, for it was well towards midnight when she docked on the down trip last night. Her passengers were chiefly excursionists who had made the round voyage, and the two or three coming from the great interior had been fellow-passengers up the river with those who reached Seattle by the Humboldt several days ago. The flyer of Dowdell & Co.'s flag having started south the same day that the Cottage City left Skagway to complete her calls at Sitka and Juneau. Some 45 passengers left the down-bound steamer here, all—or nearly all—being victims of the Edmonton route, home-bound and broken in health, pocket and spirit. As they hobbled painfully off the steamer, a dozen or more on crutches and the others leaning heavily on their heavy canes, a sad commentary was afforded of the inhuman damage that had been done by those who advocated this death-dealing passage-way into the wilderness. Their story has already been told, for they are the last stragglers of those brought down from Glenora by the government relief steamer, inclusive of the ill-fated Major Johnson party, from Essex county, Ontario. According to the tragedy of the Edmonton route will be written with the return to Wrangell of the Strathcona, which was to leave for Glenora yesterday to bring down the final installment of sick men from what its victims have characteristically christened "hell's highway."

GENTLE ART OF KISSING.

New Jersey Incident Affords Occasion for a Little French Philosophy.

From the New York Times.

In his "Polite Conversation" Dean Swift has the extraordinary remark: "Lord! I wonder what fool it was that first invented kissing." The fallacy in this saying is the attributing of the invention to a fool, for if he was a fool he was a very wise one indeed to invent a thing for which so many men have paid so much. Only the other day an estimable young man of Paterson, N. J., a town noted for its peaceful and commercial ways, fell upon the neck of a passing maiden, and much to her surprise and dismay, kissed her three times on the mouth. The young woman, who placed a secret value on the privacy of her lips, had the young man seized by a minion of the law and handed before a justice on a charge of assault and battery.

And at this point the young man made it appear that he had kissed, if kissed he had, with deliberation and, well, it can hardly be called malice, but something or other aforethought. He said that he had carefully calculated that, if he kissed that girl without telling her that he was going to do so, he would be arrested. He further stated that he had calculated that if he would be fined $5, and he had also calculated that it would be worth the money. But he argued that it was not assault and battery. He held that at the worst he was guilty only of disorderly conduct. The young lady, however, giving up her contention that it was assault and battery, and the learned justice agreed with her, and fined the young man for that. But the fine was only $5, and in so far the young man may be said to have triumphed.

The case establishes a dangerous precedent. In that place there is not a girl in the land who will agree with that eminent New Jersey justice that $5 is a fair price for three of her kisses, even though when taken by assault. Cycles may argue that a girl ought to be willing to let them go at that price so long as she had the opportunity toward the close of September, with the representatives of three foreign powers as the guests of H. M. S. Warspite and her sisters of Admiral Beaumont's squadron. The visitors are to be French, German and Italian—the first-class cruiser Protet, flying the tricolor of the first European republic; the Geier of H. I. G. M.'s navy; and an Italian training ship whose name is not yet known, at present carrying 1000 men, and due to sail for Esquimalt from Japan on the 1st proximo. The resident German consul has been advised by his government that the Geier may be expected to arrive about September 23, for a stay of ten days.

It might also have suggested to the young man the utter uselessness of his misdeed. Is Paterson a town in which there are no girls willing to be kissed? Out upon the thought! Paterson is in New Jersey. And even if it were in Massachusetts, there would still be hope. But no well-ordered girl is going to stand by and see her kisses taken at three for $5 and disorderly conduct. The conduct is the addition of insult to injury. If that young man had gone about it in the right way it is probable that he kisses would not have cost him a red cent. Let us suppose, however, merely for the sake of argument, that he could not in any circumstances have kissed that particular girl without her consent. What a goose he was to admit that he had calculated that three of her kisses were worth any fixed sum of money! Now his chances are gone with all the other girls in Paterson, and about the only thing left for him to do is to change his name and go to live in Hackensack.

Big Strike at Gordon River.

Immense Deposit of Galena Found by Messrs. Braden and Wilson.

Ore Assays Very High and Is Easy of Access—A Lost
Ledge.

The time is fast approaching when the number of big mines operating on Vancouver Island will be largely increased. Almost every week reports are received of rich finds along the West Coast and in other districts tributary to Victoria. But it has been left for Mr. John Braden, ex-M. P. P., and Mr. Keith Wilson to make the discovery that will place this Island on the same footing as Kootenay, if not on a higher plane as a mining country. For the better part of a quarter of a century Mr. Braden has been making periodical visits to the interior of the Island, first in search of game and afterwards as a prospector. As early as 1875 while on a hunting expedition he found a ledge of free-milling ore, the value of which he did not know at the time. When he became interested in mining he had the samples which he had brought in assayed, and found that they went $2,000 to the ton. Since the assay slip was handed to him Mr. Braden has been searching for the ledge, but so far without success. However, he says that he will continue in his endeavors as long as he is spared.

Mr. Keith Wilson having heard of Mr. Braden's trips was anxious to accompany him, and in fact did so. They went down to the Gordon river district and ascended that stream for about 12 miles, Mr. Braden having on a previous trip found some galena float, and being desirous of finding the ledge from which it came. They were successful even beyond expectations, the ledge which they found being at least 40 feet in width and carrying galena from wall to wall, most of it solid galena and all the ore being streaked with it. The foot-wall is porphyry and the hanging wall quartzite. One assay made showed the ore to be 66 per cent lead, besides carrying 113 ounces in silver and $37 in gold to the ton. This was the best assay, the others varying, but even the lowest showing 66 per cent lead, 6 ounces in silver and $150 in gold.

This is the first find of a large deposit of galena on Vancouver Island, and that it is a large deposit will be better understood when it is stated that in the Kootenay country a ledge one or two feet in width is considered a very good one. Messrs. Braden and Wilson staked off several claims, and other claims have been staked by those who came after. Four men were put to work on the property and a trench was blasted across the face of the ledge, exposing it. When this showed the extent and value of the deposit, the owner of an adjoining claim who had not spent a cent on his property refused an offer of $100,000 for it.

The ledge is in a gulch on the Gordon river, just 12 miles from salt water. Float from it has been traced for five miles, and Mr. Braden is confident that it is the greatest deposit of galena in the whole province. There is an abundance of water power in the vicinity, any amount of wood for fuel, and the country is free from difficulties to be encountered by road-builders. The ore, too, is easy to work, the four men who blasted the trench not having to sharpen a drill during the three weeks that they were at work.

The owners of the property are open to receive offers but are not very anxious to sell, being well able to develop the property themselves.

Business Was Forgotten.

While the Professional Men Discussed Points as to Monkey Catching.

Monotony of Life on Langley Street Is Agreeably Varied
by Sir Jacko.

The wheels of business and professional life stopped for two hours yesterday in the near vicinity of the law courts. Vehicular traffic was suspended on Langley and Bastion streets, and these thoroughfares were so blackened with massed humanity that it would have been an easy matter to have made a close approximate census of the ward.

The cause, like the causes of most street assemblages, was entirely disproportionate in importance to the result. A monkey had escaped from the collection now being exhibited on middle Government street, and the proprietors thereof were endeavoring to recapture him—with the kind assistance of sage suggestions from the crowd.

"What's all the excitement about?" was the enquiry of each new arrival on the scene, and then each promptly forgot his business engagements and settled down to enjoyment of the chase. This was, of course, after he had been assured that it was not Postmaster Shakespeare discussing the Angeles ferry question, nor the Semlin government (or the semblance of a government) taking its final fit.

The monk was prime favorite with the public. He hadn't much of an advantage in the handicap at the get-away, but he speedily improved his position in the contest by running up a tree as quickly as Frank Sehl runs up a column of figures—and then jumping nimbly as a mugwump to Shalleross & Co.'s roof.

There he sat or ran about for an hour or so, escaping stones with the easy grace of the great African dodger, and smiling his acknowledgments to the throng below. When his owner got a ladder and mounted to the roof, the monk waved him a fond adieu with his useful tail—and retired, via the convenient tree, to Cassidy & Davey's premises.

It was just about this time that Deputy Sheriff Siddall came on the scene, with a handful of blue papers, and the owner appealed to him for assistance. Necessary legal processes had not been complied with, and Mr. Siddall could do nothing further than to suggest that a capias might be applied for if an affidavit were secured to the effect that an evasion of board bill was contemplated.

In this event he would be ready to execute the resultant documents.

Superintendent Hussey and Sergeant Langley were equally powerless to aid. It seemed to them a case for civil rather than criminal procedure. Neither the Code nor yet the Merchants' Shipping act touched the desertion—the monk having at no time signed articles.

In the meantime the truant had perched on the apex of Cassidy & Davey's roof, smoking a cigar that had been tossed up to him by E. A. Morris, and trying to drive a profitable bargain with J. M. Finn in regard to announcements to the crowd of the band excursion to Seattle on the 9th proximo.

The deal was not consummated, for while the discussion was yet in progress, the acute ear of the monk caught the scratch of Arthur Davey's pen as he drew up an information for trespass. And the owner of the ear promptly decided to move on.

A flying leap brought him to Eberts & Taylor's roof, where a second endeavor was made to shell him out of his position of strategic advantage—with disaster to the skylight. Eventually he made a retreat in good order to the back yard, and seeing a window slightly opened at the top, sprang through—nearly upsetting a young lady operating a typewriter within, and causing her to give voice to a war-whoop like unto the dulcet long yell of Philip Chalk.

In his confusion Jacko had not noticed that he was getting into the clutches of the law—which of course meant his finish. As soon as the situation became intelligible to him he retired to the top shelf of the library to consult a number of old authorities, in the forlorn hope that he might save himself by a technicality.

"How are we going to get at him now?" soliloquized the owner, as he dodged "Taylor on Evidence," and the monk prepared to follow it with the Consolidated Statutes of British Columbia.

"It appears to me," said Mr. Eberts, accepting the remark as addressed to him—"that it is properly a matter for habeas corpus proceedings."

"There seems to be a bearing on the case in this judgment of Mr. Justice Grease, given three or four years ago," interjected Mr. Taylor; "I'll just read it to you."

He was proceeding to do so, when—just as he was turning the eighty-fourth page—the weary monkey fell asleep.

In this condition he was an easy victim to his pursuers.

As soon as the monk was led away in disgrace, business men remembered their appointments; lawyers retreated from their office windows to their desks; the merry tinkle of the typist's bell was once more heard in the land; and the telegraph messengers recalled to memory the fact that their pockets were as yet burdened with the rush messages in whose company they had left their offices an hour or two before.

Dr. J. D. Helmcken was one of the first to enter and also to leave the field after the capture of the beleaguered garrison. As he did so his eye fell upon his office boy, who likewise had been one of the happy throng of which the genial doctor was a pioneer. Professional dignity returned, and transfixing the unhappy youth with a Svengali gaze, the doctor inquired, sternly:

"Is this all you have to do—following a little monkey around the streets?"

The boy fled silently.

So did the crowd.

My friend, look here! You know how weak and nervous your wife is, and you know that Carter's Iron Pills will relieve her: now, why not be fair about it and buy her a box?

For a few hours last evening the Hotel Driford had as guests a little party of Nebraskans one of whom at least is known by name to all readers of the Anglo-Saxon press. This is Senator John M. Thurston, the most noted Republican in Bryan's state, whose investigations of Cuban conditions before the war had a very material bearing upon the initiation of the short and eventful struggle that resulted so disastrously for Spain. His travelling companions are Dr. W. J. Brownrigg and H. A. Homan, also from Omaha, and Carroll Rorman, of Washington. Senator Thurston's term does not expire until the first year of the new century.

Travellers for pleasure make up the entire register list at the Hotel Victoria for yesterday. Among the number are A. McPhillips and wife, of McMinaville, Ore.; B. F. and C. N. Berrian, Mrs. B. F. A novel method of detecting the sound of a steamship's propellers has been invented by an Italian. He has made an apparatus which is a variation of the telephone. Several transmitters are submerged and arranged on land, or to point in different directions, all being connected with a receiver on board another ship. The direction in which the sound is loudest indicates the point of the compass in which the distant ship is to be looked for.

A Plain Talk To Women

Almost all the sufferings that women endure can be traced to irregularities of the delicate and sensitive feminine organism. A healthy woman is never irregular. It is the pale, weak, nervous woman who suffers with headaches, backaches, bearing down feelings and gloomy forebodings when the monthly action comes on.

Set the nerves right and the pains and aches will disappear. There will be no more irregularities when the whole body is under the control of healthy nerves. The most successful restorative that science has ever devised for exhausted nerves is and it has proven so wonderfully beneficial to women that it is now considered specific for ailments peculiar to women. Besides restoring and re-vitalizing the nerves, Dr. Chasets Nerve Food makes new, red corpuscles in the blood, rounds out the form and gives new vitality and elasticity to every movement. Fifty cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

THE PEERAGE OF JAPAN.

Some Facts About the Aristocracy of This New Member of the Family of Nations.

Marquise De Fontenay in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Inasmuch as Japan has now for the last four weeks been admitted to what is known as the western country of nations, and ranks in so far as a civilized power that it is no longer subjected to the humiliating system of extra-territoriality, a few words on the subject of its peerage as now constituted may prove of timely interest. We are constantly hearing here of Princes, Counts and Barons hailing from the Land of the Rising Sun. But no one knows exactly the value of these titles, either in this country or in Europe, at any rate, in their application to the Japanese, and inasmuch as the official Japanese peerage is written in Japanese, it is difficult to obtain information on the subject.

Japan's House of Peers to-day comprises ten Princes, none of them of Imperial rank; thirty-five Marquises, eight Counts, 350 Viscounts and a little over 100 Barons. The ten Princes comprise the chiefs of the former so-called Gosakke families, five in number, which in times gone by constituted the immediate entourage of the Mikado in the ancient capital of Kyoto. The names of the five families in question are the Ichijo, to which the reigning Emperor belongs, and the houses of Kujō, Takatsukasa, Nijo and Konoye.

In 1883 the Emperor conferred hereditary peerages of princely rank on the families of Sanjo, who was his first promoter; upon Iwakura, who was the first Japanese ambassador to the United States; upon Shimadzu, who previous to the revolution of 1867 was the reigning Daimio of the vassal state of Satsuma; upon the Mori family, and last, but not least, upon the illustrious house of Tokugawa, who, for the space of 200 years—that is to say, down to the revolution of 1867—monopolized the temporal sovereignty of Japan, leaving to the Mikado only the spiritual supremacy, and the first treaty ever signed between this country and Japan was made in the name of the Mikado, but of the Teyoon, the title borne by the head of the ten temporal rulers, namely, Prince Tokugawa. The revolution of 1867, as every one knows, resulted in the Mikado recovering temporal supremacy, and in the transfer of the imperial abode from Kyoto to Tokyo, while the Teyoon withdrew into private life. He still survives, as do likewise his two brothers, one of whom visited the court of the Tuileries in 1896, where he was received with imperial honors, afterward going on to England, the Prince of Wales coming as far as Dover to welcome him. The Teyoon's son is one of the most prominent nobles of the House of Lords at Tokyo, and is a particular favorite of the Emperor, who is a frequent visitor at his palace. Both the Emperor and the Empress, I may add, visit the members of these ten princely houses, and it is from among their daughters that the rulers of Japan are expected to look for their consorts.

Few people have any idea of the lineage and of the length of the unbroken descent of some of the princely houses of the old aristocracy of Japan. Thus the oldest and most illustrious of all is that of the Fujiwara, who trace back their ancestry in an unbroken line for 2900 years back to a remnant of the founder of the Japanese dynasty. Although there are only ten princely families that are represented in the House of Lords, yet there are alongside of these at least 150 so-called noble families, several of whom trace back their descent to the lifetime of Christ. Some of them were founded by the sons of Emperors and of the latter's concubines, while others owe their origin to famous generals and statesmen in the earliest days of Japan.

These Kujō families bear the princely title, and although unrepresented in the Chamber of Peers, constitute what may be described as the cream of Japanese aristocracy, the kind of "Noble Paubour" of the Tokyo world. As a rule, they look down upon and consider of no account a footing of equality the Princes Shimadzu, Nijo and Tokugawa, regarding them as mere parvenues, owing to their ancestry being only a few centuries old, instead of counting by thousands of years.

With regard to the marquises, there are twenty-five, most of them are former Daimios or great territorial nobles of far less exalted rank than the Kujō families, but who exercised petty sovereignty over their respective provinces, and who were the principal supporters of the Teyoon against the Mikado. At the time when the House of Peers was created, the rank conceded to the former daimios, who may be compared to the feudal nobles of mediaeval Europe, was proportioned according to their territorial possessions and to the sacrifices which they had made on behalf of the empire. Thus the Daimio of Owari, the most powerful and richest of all, who by his rebellion against the Teyoon had helped the Mikado to recover his temporal supremacy, was created a prince, whereas Nabeshima had to be satisfied with a marquise. The former Daimio or petty ruler of the province of Kaga, a name familiar to all collectors of porcelain, is the Marquis Maeda, who remains probably the wealthiest and the most go-ahead member of the Japanese nobility.

Let me add incidentally that the Marquis Nabeshima is to-day Grand Master of the Ceremonies at the Japanese Court, while his wife, who dresses to the order of the latest Parisian fashion, is one of the principal assistants of the Empress in the latter's recently organized riding club, where the ladies of the highest Japanese aristocracy, who formerly never rode, now are becoming adept equestrians, the Empress herself being no exception. With regard to the counts, viscounts and the barons, they are nearly all men belonging to the former two-sworded class, that is to say, to the petty nobility, who by service to the state, or by reason of the possession of territorial influence, have been accorded seats in the Chamber of Peers.

When I refer above to the peerage of Japan, and to there being only ten princes and twenty-five marquises, and so on, it must be thoroughly understood that while these occupy seats as such in the House of Lords they do not by any means constitute the whole aristocracy of Japan. In Great Britain there are lots of aristocrats with blue-blooded and unbroken line of ancestry going back to the crusades, but who have no seat in the House of Lords. So it is in Japan, and, as I have endeavored to show in this paper, while there are a few princely houses, which are represented by their chiefs seated in the princes' bench in the Chamber of Peers, there are considerably over 100 kuge or princely families that have no seat in the House of Lords, but which nevertheless constitute the cream of the aristocracy of Japan.

A few years ago Blue Ribbon Beryl Tea was unknown, today it is a household word. Why?

PAUL KRUGER.

Deep mournful eyes that seek the ground
The devious path to trace;
The giant form of Lincoln, crowned
By Cromwell's grosser face;
Coarse rustic garb of uncouth cut,
That masks such mighty limb;
Its shapless folds the ready butt
Of Europe's jesters' trim.

So much the crowd can see; the rest
Ask critics, clearer-eyed;
So rough a scabbard leaves unguessed
How keen the blade inside;
The trenchant will, the subtle brain
So strangely doomed to wage
With destiny's still climbing main
The hopeless war of Age.

His kindred are a rugged brood
That nurse a dying fire;
The sons of Calvin's bitter mood,
And sterner than their sire;
By faith through trackless desert steered,
Lost miles of lonely sand,
Far from the intruding world they feared,
They found their Promised Land.

By such grim guardians tutored well
His Spartan childhood grew,
The wind-trail of the fleet gazelle,
The lion's path he knew;
The camp surprised at dawn, the rush
Of feet, the crackling smoke,
When on the sleeping lion's hush
The sudden Kafir broke.

Nay, once, 'tis said, when Vaal in flood
Had barred the hunter's way,
And 'mid its swollen current stood
A wounded buck at bay,
While some before the brute drew back,
Any some before the brute drew back,
Striding that torrent's foaming track
The mercy-stroke he gave.

Positive Proof That Japanese Catarrh Cure Cures.—The following testimonial is only one of the hundreds daily received by the proprietors of Japanese Catarrh Cure. Coming from British Columbia, where, owing to extreme dampness of the climate, catarrh is more prevalent and more difficult to cure than in other parts, makes it more valuable. Mr. James Farr, of the well-known firm of J. & E. A. Farr, Chilliwack, B. C., writes: "I have been very badly troubled with catarrh for years, and tried all the advertised remedies, and many doctors, but in every case the catarrh came back. One year ago I purchased six boxes of Japanese Catarrh Cure, and since finishing the treatment with this remedy have not felt the least sign of catarrh. My nephew, William Beutley, was also so bad with catarrh that it was unpleasant to go near him. He has also been cured by Japanese Catarrh Cure. We keep it for sale in our store, and know of many others similarly afflicted who have been cured." Japanese Catarrh Cure is guaranteed to cure any case of catarrh. Sold by all druggists. Price, 50 cents. A free sample will be sent to any person suffering from this disease. Enclose 5 cents in stamps. Address the Griffiths & Macpherson Co., Toronto.

Four Tennis Champions.

Should Be Invited to Visit
This City and Meet
Local Cracks.

Team Selected to Represent Bays in Saturday's Lacrosse Match.

The announcement that Mr. George Wright, of Wright & Ditson, is about to bring to the Pacific Coast the American champion, Malcolm D. Whitman, accompanied by Beales C. Wright, of Harvard, the intercollegiate champion, Holcomb Ward and Dwight F. Davis, inspires the suggestion that steps should be taken to induce Mr. Wright to bring this galaxy of tennis stars to Victoria. As there are no other grass courts in the Pacific Northwest, the Easterners would be able to put up their own game here better than on the clay courts of the neighboring cities, with which they are altogether unfamiliar—and besides, this is the home of Foulkes, who is officially rated with the best Canadian players, and is indisputably the champion of the Northern Pacific Coast. Were it not for the loss of business time involved, Champion Foulkes would now be visiting California, to add further honors to his string of championships. A meeting between Foulkes and the Eastern cracks would be a great thing for Victoria, and an excellent advertisement for the city—already well known in the world of sport.

Stephen, F. White, J. Bland, Frank Smith and K. Schofield.

CRICKET.

Banks Team.

The following team, representing the United Banks Cricket Club, will play the Navy on the Canteen grounds on Saturday, at 2 p.m. sharp: E. A. Wyld, G. S. Holt, E. W. C. Hilton, J. H. Gillespie, A. ## LIQUID AIR IN SURGERY.

Dr. A. Campbell White has been experimenting with liquid air on the tissues of the human body. The results obtained encourage the belief that it will come into extensive use as a local anesthetic, and probably for many other medical and surgical purposes. The difference in temperature between liquid air at 312 degrees Fahrenheit below zero and the human body at 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit above zero—over 400 degrees of temperature—affords a unique means of producing a sudden and extreme shock to a localized part of the body, without localized destruction of tissue, or without some effect on the general system. It takes only a second or two to produce locally the most extreme cold, and but little more than that time for the part to regain its temperature. Thus, by repeating the operation several times at short intervals, great stimulation, which is purely local, is obtained. Dr. White is sanguine as to the use of liquid air in pulmonary diseases, in the reduction of fever, etc. He also thinks it reasonable to suppose that the repeated application of liquid air to cancerous tissue will arrest the rapid and lawless cell multiplication characteristic of the cancer tumor growth, and effect a recovery, providing no metastasis takes place. When a spray of liquid air is applied to the human skin, the part becomes anaemic and colorless. If the spray is applied for only a few seconds, the color as quickly comes back, and the skin is congested for some minutes afterward. A minute's spraying causes freezing. After this quick restoration of the circulation there is no injury to the tissues, excepting when the liquid is applied at a finger tip or some other extremity. An excellent feature of liquid air in surgery is the absence of hemorrhage, by which the operator to apply the dressing before any bleeding sets in, the dressing being then sufficient to stop any oozing. Where liquid air is applied too freely the flesh becomes so hard that it is impossible to make an incision with the scalpel. Dr. White believes that it is better—when using it as a local anesthetic—to apply it intermittently while the operator is working, than to try to freeze the part so that it will remain numb for any length of time.

Lord Morris has been elected vice-chancellor of the Royal University of Ireland.

THE ORIGINAL.

There is only one remedy known that has a combined action on the kidneys and liver and cures the most complicated ailments of these delicate filtering organs, and that is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pill. This world-famous kidney and liver cure has an enormous sale in all parts of Canada and the United States.

WHEN THE DAY IS DONE.

Manners easily and rapidly mature into habits.—Horace Mann.
God hath yoked to guilt her pale torment, misery.—Bryant.
One murder made a villain; millions a hero. Numbers sanctified the crime.—Porteus.
Zeal is very blind, or badly regulated, when it encroaches upon the rights of others.—Inaugural Oration.
I love to lose myself in other men's minds. When I am not walking, I am reading. I cannot sit and think; books think for me. I have no repugnances. Shakespeare is not too genteel for me, nor Johnathan Wild too low.—Lamb.
If the will, which is a law of nature, were withdrawn from our memory, fancy, understanding and reason, no other hell could equal, for a spiritual being, what we should then feel from the anarchy of our powers. It would be conscience madness—a horrid thought.—Milton.
He who is sincere hath the easiest task in the world, for, truth being always consistent with itself, he is put to no trouble about his words and actions; it is like travelling in a plain road, which is sure to bring you to your journey's end better than byways, in which many lose themselves.—J. Beaumont.
We must have kings, we must have nobles; nature is always providing such in every society; only let us have the real instead of the titular. In every society some are born to rule and some to advise. The chief is the chief all the world over, only not his cap and plume. It is only this dislike of the pretender which makes men sometimes unjust to the true and finished man.—Emerson.
